The Guide specifies the classification system of medical data, the principles of use and disclosure, safety measures, safety management guide, and safety technology guide, etc. The guide analyzes the data security of eight typical scenarios, including clinical research data, health data, mobile application data and medical device data, which are the most common problems in data application.

[Regional] Provisions of Shanghai Municipality on the Service and Management of Actual Population (Revised on Feb 15, 2021 and became effective on April 1, 2021)

Since April 1, the newly revised Provisions have come into effect. Real population refers to the registered residence in Shanghai or the registered residence of other provinces and regions but stay in Shanghai (hereinafter referred to as the Shanghai visitors). Temporary visitors to Shanghai mainly refer to those who stay in Shanghai for more than 24 hours for medical treatment, school, tourism, official activities, visiting relatives and friends, etc. Per the Provisions, temporary visitors are included into the actual population management, but the registration of temporary visitors with relevant authority is not mandatory.
